

Defending the European title on Metzeler tyres

Professional stunt rider Chris Pfeiffer made it once again. After winning the title in 2004 and 2006 the sympathetic guy from the Allgaeu (Germany) became European Stuntriding Champion for the third time. Just like in all his competitions and performances he also relied on Metzeler tyres in this year's European championship final.

Motorcyclists must be able to rely on their tyres a hundred per cent. This rule holds true especially for riders permanently acting in threshold as their occupation. In this profession Chris Pfeiffer has been a world class athlete for many years. - Holding two World Championship titles - indoors and outdoors - as well as two European Championships in stunt riding he is one of the most successful bike artists of our time. In doing so the BMW factory rider has been trusting in Metzeler tyres' top performance for years.

Consequently Pfeiffer took part "elephant" tyre mounted in the European Championships in Amsterdam last weekend. The EC triple was perfect after good runs in both freestyle and compulsory part of the program as well as semifinal and final. The 37 year old exceptional artist led home Spanish riders AC Farias und Narcis Roca.
